DESCRIPTION

Nordic Luxury Island Retreat in Finland's Archipelago

The island remains completely untouched by earlier development, making it a rare sanctuary where architecture and nature exist in perfect harmony. Three Nordic-inspired cabins sit quietly within the landscape, offering modern comfort while preserving the raw beauty of the surrounding archipelago. This secluded retreat combines minimalist Scandinavian design with the wild elegance of Finland's coastal wilderness.

Scandinavian Design Blending Seamlessly with Nature

Perched on a rocky hilltop, the cabins are carefully positioned to maximise natural light and sweeping sea views. Large terraces follow the natural contours of the island, creating elegant outdoor living spaces that feel integrated with the landscape.

The architecture draws inspiration from traditional archipelago buildings, featuring gabled roofs designed to withstand coastal conditions while maintaining a timeless Nordic aesthetic. Narrow spatial layouts maximise windows, allowing the interiors to remain bright, open, and connected to the surrounding sea and forest.

Sustainable materials were selected throughout the construction. Solid log walls provide durability and natural insulation, while vertical thermo-treated pine cladding adds a contemporary finish. The matte felt roofing completes the minimalist design while protecting the cabins from the Nordic climate.

Inside, exposed log walls and thermo-treated fir flooring create warmth and texture. Acoustic ceiling panels ensure comfort and tranquillity, allowing the interiors to feel both refined and peaceful.

Expansive Terraces and Outdoor Living

Nearly 1,500 square metres of decking extend across the island's rocky terrain, offering multiple places to relax, dine, and enjoy the ever-changing sea views. Outdoor cooking areas allow guests to prepare meals while enjoying the surrounding landscape, while several sheltered dining spaces adapt naturally to changing wind directions and sunlight.

The island itself forms a compact triangular shape with three small peninsulas extending toward the northern shore. Dramatic rocky bays provide natural protection from the elements, while one deep bay forms a natural harbour suitable for docking boats. A second, more sheltered bay offers the perfect place for sea swimming during warmer months.

Sauna Rituals and the Magic of the Finnish Archipelago

A stay on the island embraces the timeless rituals of Finnish island life. The wood-fired sauna overlooks the sea, creating the perfect setting for relaxation after a day of exploration. Afterwards, guests can take a refreshing cold dip directly in the surrounding waters.

The island invites slower living. Days may include kayaking across the archipelago, foraging for wild mushrooms in the pine forest, or simply watching the shifting light across the Baltic Sea.

Remote Yet Accessible from Helsinki

Reaching the island is part of the adventure. The journey begins with a scenic two-hour drive from Helsinki, followed by a peaceful twenty-minute boat ride across the archipelago waters.

This sense of remoteness enhances the island's charm. Despite its small footprint, the ever-changing seascape ensures there is always something new to discover, from passing boats and migrating birds to dramatic coastal weather.

Whether enjoying long summer evenings on the terrace, quiet winter sauna rituals, or storm watching beside the fire, this luxury private island retreat in Finland offers a rare opportunity to experience the Nordic archipelago in complete privacy.
