DESCRIPTION

An extraordinary private residence in Rome, Villa Del Ferro combines historic architecture, exceptional craftsmanship and the vision of renowned French designer Jacques Garcia.

Originally built in 1929 in the elegant Liberty style, the villa has since undergone a remarkable transformation. Garcia took inspiration from Greek and Roman architecture. As a result, the interiors have extraordinary character. Precious materials, exquisite antiques and intricate detailing feature throughout. Together, they make every room a visual experience.

Amethyst features within sections of the walls. Meanwhile, precious marbles, gilded surfaces and wooden ceilings edged in gold add depth and richness. Ebony and ivory accents create striking contrasts. In addition, exceptional antiques from Italy, Japan and China give each space its own personality. The result is a residence that feels both historic and wonderfully individual.

A Residence of Exceptional Character

Villa Del Ferro unfolds across four levels and features four beautifully appointed suites. Two suites sit on the first floor, while the other two occupy the lower level. Each bedroom includes a television, safe and Wi-Fi. Therefore, guests can enjoy modern comforts alongside the villa's distinctive decorative style.

Throughout the residence, every detail contributes to its remarkable atmosphere. Carefully selected materials sit alongside an extraordinary collection of antiques. Furthermore, the interiors invite guests to discover something new in every room.

An elevator connects the different levels. Meanwhile, climate control and an integrated security system provide comfort and peace of mind throughout the stay.

A Private Wellness Retreat

The lower floor is dedicated to relaxation and wellbeing. Here, guests can enjoy the swimming pool, sauna, Turkish bath and private massage room. Together, these facilities create a peaceful retreat away from the energy of the city.

For those who prefer to stay active, the villa also features a private gym. In addition, the swimming pool has a counter-current system. This allows guests to swim against the current and enjoy a more invigorating workout.

After a day exploring Rome's historic streets and remarkable landmarks, the wellness area offers a welcome opportunity to unwind. It is the perfect place to relax and recharge.

Panoramic Rooftop Living

One of Villa Del Ferro's most captivating features is its terrace. From here, a spectacular 360-degree panorama reveals the beauty of Rome.

Furnished for both dining and relaxation, the terrace offers an exceptional setting. Guests can gather for an alfresco meal or enjoy a leisurely afternoon taking in the views. Alternatively, they can unwind in the outdoor jacuzzi.

As the light changes across Rome's rooftops and historic skyline, the terrace becomes an unforgettable place to experience the city.

An Exceptional Stay in Rome

Villa Del Ferro brings together historic character, extraordinary design and private leisure facilities. Its distinctive interiors celebrate the artistry of Jacques Garcia. Meanwhile, the wellness area and panoramic terrace create a sense of retreat within the city.

From its remarkable collection of antiques to its rooftop jacuzzi and private swimming pool, every element adds to the experience. Ultimately, Villa Del Ferro offers a memorable setting for an exceptional Roman escape.
